DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Specification

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: On page 14, line 12 of the disclosure, change “the further spring 16” to read -- the second spring 17 --. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-8, 14-23, 25-28 and 31-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by USPN 6,618,904 to Nagy. Nagy discloses a vehicle hinge mechanism comprising; a vehicle body (34), a flap (38), a four-joint flap hinge comprising a first link (18) and a second link (16), the first link and the second link each being pivotably attached to the vehicle body and to the flap, a gas-filled spring (56) assigned to the vehicle body and to the flap, and a first spring (44) arranged on the vehicle body, the first spring being in a tensioned position when the flap is closed and urging the flap into an opening direction, wherein one of the first link and the second link comprises a tensioning device or portion (22) coming into contact with the first spring in a second opening phase of the flap and tensioning the first spring back into the tensioned position, and a locking device (52, 53) for retaining the tensioned first spring.

As to claims 3-8, 25 and 26, the first spring of Nagy is a torsion spring having leaf legs (50,48) and a convolution part (46) projecting in a direction of the second link for urging the flap in the opening direction. The tensioning device or pivot pin includes a coupling region (Fig. 5) defined as a projection for tensioning the first spring when the second link is pivoted. The locking devices are retainers, which holds the first spring legs in a locked position when the flap is lowered or raised (Fig. 5).

As to claims 16-19 and 23, the hinge mechanism of Nagy further includes a bracket section (12) assigned to the first spring in contact with the first and second links in a partially open and closed position respectively. As seen in Fig. 1, at rest before an initial opening movement the first spring is not in contact with the first link, second link or flap. The stored spring energy in the first spring merges with the opening movement provided by the gas-filled spring (Fig. 3).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9-13, 24, 29 and 30 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 3677

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. In particular, Easu et al discloses a vehicle hood hinge having structural components similar to applicant's invention and arranged to meet the limitations of applicant's base claim(s).
